ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to acknowledge my invaluable collaborators for the embodied critical inquiry method. First, I would like to thank Constance Echo Palmer and Shannon Stanley for helping me develop and work out the method itself during the beginning stages. I would like to thank Deena Weisberg and Sorsha Masters for helping me iron out the final kinks. And I would like to thank AnnMarie Spexet for all of her emotional and artistic support, as well as for her work doing all of the videography and photography for the book and method development.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Shay Welch is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Spelman College. She was the 2020–2021 Carnegie Corporation and Rockefeller Foundation Distinguished Research/Creative Scholar. She is Chair of the Association for Feminist Ethics and Social Theory and is a founding board member of Tenure for the Common Good. Her recent book is The Phenomenology of a Performative Knowledge System: Dancing with Native American Epistemology (Palgrave Macmillan 2019). Her previous books are Existential Eroticism: A Feminist Ethics Approach to Women's Oppression Perpetuating Choices (Lexington Books 2015) and A Theory of Freedom: Feminism and the Social Contract (Palgrave Macmillan 2012). She teaches courses on freedom, embodied knowledge, embodied cognition, dance, systemic oppression, ethics, sex, feminism, and Native American Philosophy. Her professional goals are to support and mentor young women of color in Philosophy and to aid the discipline in recruiting and retaining more underrepresented young philosophers.
